I strongly disagree with the FCC regulating satellite radio such that they will not be able to have locally targeted content. The cable networks have the ability with television to have local content and radio should as well. Here in Missoula, mt my house does not get acceptable broadcast radio reception and satellite radio allows me a choice of what to hear. I pay ~$120 a year for this service and it is not right to limit their ability to broadcast content of interest. The big corporate playlists are full of repetitive crap that I choose not to fill my ears up with and XM sets me free from that.
